Wrought through personal experience and a clear-eyed perception of exile in the 1970s, this historically based novel relates the lives of Chileans taking refuge in East Germany. Delving into their varied circumstances, Carlos Cerda brings each character to life—including the elderly Senator Don Carlos who is segregated from his friends because of his age, the actress Lorena who has followed her husband Mario into exile with unhappy consequences for their marriage, and the young would-be ballerina Leni. The author expertly captures the emotional tension, bittersweet hopefulness, and cultural disorientation experienced by the uprooted individuals. Moving and memorable, the book provides an invaluable insight into a situation that is both universal in its scope and deeply personal to those it affects.

As a college student exactly feel bored to be able to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library or to make summary for some book, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's spirit or real their pastime. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading very seriously. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring as well as can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is to be complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this era, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this To Die in Berlin can make you really feel more interested to read.
